Part II: Narrative Explanation

II. A - Brief Description Of What The Measure Does That Has Fiscal Impact on the Courts

Summary:

This bill, known as the Washington voting rights act of 2015, would create a cause of action when protected classes do not have an equal opportunity to elect candidates of their choice to the governing body of a political subdivision.

Sections with potential court impact:

Section 3 would create a violation for political subdivisions when an election exhibits polarized voting or when protected classes do not have an equal opportunity to elect candidates of their choice.

Section 4 would create a cause of action when a political subdivision violates section 3, whether or not there is proof of the intent to discriminate. The trial court must set a trial date no later than 1 year after the filing of the complaint. The plaintiff could seek a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction without posting a bond or other security. No action could be filed before January 15, 2016.

Section 6 would allow the trial court, upon finding a violation of section 3, to order appropriate remedies, including imposition of a district-based election system and holding new elections.

Section 7 would allow the plaintiffs to recover reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

The political subdivision would be allowed to recover reasonable attorneys' fees and costs only if the court finds the action to be frivolous under RCW 4.84.185.

Section 8 would allow a member of a protected class and a resident of the political subdivision to file the action in the superior court of that county, or a near county if the action is against the county.

Section 11 would limit the act to cities and towns of populations over 1,000 and school districts with K-12 full-time equivalent enrollments of over 250.

II. B - Cash Receipts Impact

None.

II. C - Expenditures

There is insufficient data available to estimate the fiscal impact of this bill. Based upon information provided and input from the courts, it is assumed that the impact would be less than $50,000 per year. The $50,000 expenditure level represents approximately 84 hours (0.07 FTE) of superior court judicial officer time annually cumulative for all superior courts in the state with associated support staff and operational costs. It is assumed, therefore, that this bill would require less than 84 hours of judicial officer time statewide on an annual basis. However, there is no data available to predict how many suits, and in what time frame or jurisdiction, might be filed under the provisions of the bill. For the purposes of this estimate, we are assuming that the fiscal impact would be less than $50,000 annually, but in this instance, the level of expenditure is really unknown. It is possible that more than a few lawsuits will be filed statewide, which could easily surpass the $50,000 expenditure level.

Part IV: Analysis A. SUMMARY OF BILL

Provide a clear, succinct description of the bill with an emphasis on how it impacts local government.

This legislation would amend RCW 36.32.020, RCW 54.12.010, and RCW 29A.76.010, add a new section to chapters 28A.343, 35.21, 35A.21, and 52.14 RCW, and a new chapter to Title 29A RCW.

Section 3 (1) states that a local jurisdiction is in violation of this section when its elections exhibit polarized voting and members of a protected class do not have equal opportunity to elect candidates and influence the outcome of an election.

Section 5 allows local jurisdictions to alter their election system to remedy a potential violation under Section 3. Sec. 5 (2) states that, if a local jurisdiction wishes to implement a district-based voting system they must follow the criteria outlined under this subsection. Sec. 5 (3) requires jurisdictions to hold public hearings in the event of such implementation. Sec. 5 (4) (c) requires jurisdictions implementing a district-based voting system to hold new elections for candidates that have at least two years remaining in their term.

Section 6 3 (a) requires jurisdictions in violation of this act to hold new elections with a five-day filing period, if court ordered within a specific window of time.

Section 8 allows a member of a protected class residing in a jurisdiction where a violation is alleged may file action in the superior court of the county or in the superior court of the two nearest judicial districts if the action is against the county.

Section 10 (3) specifies that if two or more notices containing different remedies, the jurisdiction must seek a mutual solution with the people who brought the notice.

Section 11 exempts from this legislation cities and towns with populations under one thousand population.

Section 14 allows cities and towns to change their electoral system. All of the jurisdiction's officials with terms of at least two years are subject to reelection.

Section 16 requires fire districts to be redrawn subject to Section 5.

B. SUMMARY OF EXPENDITURE IMPACTS

Briefly describe and quantify the expenditure impacts of the legislation on local governments, identifying the expenditure provisions by section number, and when appropriate, the detail of expenditures. Delineate between city, county and special district impacts.

There are potentially significant (greater than $1 million) but indeterminate costs for cities, counties, and special districts that are defendants in filings under Section 3 of the bill. Such jurisdictions would incur costs to develop a defense, and participate in and pay for costs related to court hearings. In cases where the plaintiff prevails, jurisdictions would also have costs related to changing or establishing district lines (depending on case details), holding new elections (potentially at a special election date) and court costs for plaintiffs.

Costs for individual jurisdictions would vary based on the size and complexity of the voting district, time required to prepare a defense, number of individual plaintiffs under Section 7, and other factors, so cannot be reasonably estimated. However, the Association of Washington Cities states that litigation under a similar statute in California has resulted in costs of over $1 million to at least one individual city. The Washington Association for County Officials (WACO) estimated that the first year of similar legislation in California resulted in over $4 million in law suits against local governments. Washington's population is under one-fifth the size of California's.

In addition to these potential litigation-related costs, jurisdictions choosing to adopt district elections under Section 4 would incur costs to draw the districts, conduct public outreach, and hold new elections. These jurisdictions would also need to revisit district lines after each decennial census. Depending on the size and scope of these changes, costs could range from tens to hundreds of thousands of dollars, including staff and attorney time, and consulting costs for expert assistance in analyzing data and drawing districts. Costs would also vary due to a jurisdiction's size (WACO).

Overall expenditure impacts of the bill on local governments cannot be reasonably estimated given the range of potential costs in individual cases and uncertainty about the frequency with which the bill's provisions would be invoked.

BACKGROUND:

There are 39 counties, 281 cities, and 1,229 special taxing districts in Washington State. There are 56 types of special districts including school (296), fire (134), cemetery (103) port (75) public utility (28), and myriad other topics. Each of these entities elects board members, commissioners, or other leaders by either at-large or district-based elections. The form of electoral process used by each entity is prescribed in statute and occasionally subject to board decision. When a district is divided into sub-districts (or director districts) these are to be as equal as possible in population. Generally these district boundaries are redrawn in the year following release of census information by the federal government. The districts themselves are determined by service area and/or taxing district area.

County auditor election departments conduct elections on behalf of special taxing districts, cities, counties, state government, and federal government. Each county bills its local jurisdictions for a prorated share of the cost of each election. Election costs include both fixed and variable costs related to a specific election. The cost to a jurisdiction varies significantly depending on how many other jurisdictions share the specific election date. If there are many sharing a date, each jurisdiction's share of the costs are lower. November general elections have the most participating jurisdictions so the cost to individual jurisdictions is lower. Conducting a one-issue election on a special election date usually leads to much higher costs. For example, if a city of around 25,000 population located in one of the Puget Sound counties ran its election in November it would likely cost between $2,000 and $4,000. The same election held on a special election date by itself might cost as much as $75,000, ranging from $.20 per voter to almost $3 per voter.

C. SUMMARY OF REVENUE IMPACTS

Briefly describe and quantify the revenue impacts of the legislation on local governments, identifying the revenue provisions by section number, and when appropriate, the detail of revenue sources. Delineate between city, county and special district impacts.

This legislation would not impact local government revenue.
